May 17, 2021

Discrimination or harassment in the workplace is a prevalent issue in Hong Kong. A survey carried out by the Equal Opportunities Commission revealed that 18% of the respondents had experienced discrimination or harassment when seeking a job or during their work. In this webinar, we reviewed the key concepts under existing anti-discrimination laws in Hong Kong with a focus on workplace discrimination and explored equal opportunities issues that might arise in the employment context with reference to case law.
